Introduction

We all know that every year Santa Claus delivers presents to boys and girls around the world.

You play Christmas elves at the North Pole, which bares a suspicious resemblance to Metro Vancouver.

Something threatens Christmas. Can you save the day?

Tensions

Traditionalists vs modernists

TODO: BETTER LABELS!

While the North Pole is on the leading edge of every technical evolution, there's a contingent of elves who strongly believe that Santa should give traditional toys: wooden blocks, dolls, Monopoly. They're upset at the rise of video games, cheap electronics, and what they call "unChristmassy gizmos".

On the other side are the modernists, who take joy in hacking into Steam to generate keys.

Yule cultists

Based in Old Yuleminster.

The Unjollying

I'm totally ripping off the Blinding from Han Cluster.

An increasing number of elves have lost the Holiday Spirit. They've gathered in the Downtown Eastside, where Krampus looks after them.

Regions of the North Pole

The North Spire - The near-vertical spiky mountain at absolute north. Only accessible via skibus across the frozen wastes.

Christmas City - Vancouver.

Brr-naby Mountain - Mountain just to the east of Christmas City. Home to Jack Frost University. Accessing via R5 Rapid Bobsled.

Sno-quiltam - A lightly inhabited forest area to the east of Brr-naby Mountain. At the end of the Skysleigh.

PUN FOR NEW WESTMINSTER - The old capital of the North Pole, back when Christmas was known as Yule.

Point Sleigh - The rich elves neighbourhood. Home to Santa and Mrs Claus.

The Downtown Eastside - Refuge of elves who just aren't that into Christmas. Home of Krampus's outreach centre and restaurants that sell food other than candy.

Christmas City

Point Sleigh

Rich elves.
